

1:1 MEETING STRUCTURE

Always start 1:1 with some general chat about how is going for them:

What is going well in life, or not?

	Employee Recognizes	Employee Does Not Recognize
Reinforcing Feedback	1. Manager Asks: “What is going well for you?” (in job, with members, on a project, with anything) - Employee shares - Manager listens - Managers checks off their list - Manager reinforces with specific feedback on how that example supports the Club/Strategy/ Member - Employee keeps sharing positive until their list is complete	2. Manager Adds: “I’ve also noticed that...” (Describe additional POSITIVE items or opportunities for reinforcing feedback). - Manager shares what they have seen/heard - BE Specific: Situation + Behavior + Impact - Ask them what they think about this example you shared - Keep sharing positives until your list is complete
Redirecting Feedback	3. Manager Asks: “What could be going better for you?” - Employee shares - Manager Listens and gets curious - Check off your list – if it’s on there - Reinforce what the impact has been – or ask them what they see the impact of this situation has on Club/Member/ Themselves - Develop a plan to improve – or parking lot this to a specific meeting focused on this issue	IF all issues have been covered in Box 3 - you are done! IF NOT... 4. Manager Adds something the employee didn’t consider: “How has (insert issue) been going for you?” - Manager describes additional issue or opportunity with situation, behavior and impact - Manager asks for employee viewpoint - Manager listens - Develop a plan to improve – or parking lot this to a specific meeting focused on this issue
